ASTRONOMICAL OBSERVATORY. By the last steamer Lieut. Gillis of the United States Navy, has satisfactorily arrived in Chili charged by the government of the United States with a scientific mission of the highest importance—one to ascertain the true distance of the earth from the sun, the computation of which has at once resulted in by astronomers. Various European savans, similarly commissioned with Lieut. Gillis are about to occupy themselves with the work at different points of Europe and China. The Government of the United States has taken upon itself the part that belongs to America, and Chili has been selected in South America on account of its clear skies and natural topographical advantages. Mr. Gillis has received the instrument, which he awaited, and, having joined the astrological gathering who are to accompany him and who arrived at this port by another vessel has gone to Santiago where he has met on the part of the authorities and private citizens the most frank and cordial co-operation. The hill of San Luis, as certified by the astronomers of the capital is the site chosen for the observatory, the eminence of which will not be delayed. We congratulate ourselves upon the preference shown to Chili by the United States Government, and upon the occasion of having in our midst such illustrious guests.—We trust that they may find in the pure sky the revelations of science and the enchantments of life in the cordial hospitality of the Chilian citizens.—Valparaiso Mercury, Nov. 4th.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1851.

☞ The Mercury very unjustly and unnecessarily labors to represent our worthy Mayor accountable for giving a wrong construction to the action of the city council in reference to the disposal of the market foundation to the General Government. In order to this, it is found necessary to represent that the city council, in passing an order that the Mayor be authorized and directed to tender to the Government of the United States the whole of the market foundation, situated between the Kenduskeag and Middle Bridges, as a site for the Custom House, for the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, did not intend to assume the responsibility of clearing incumbrances and securing the title, but to dodge all this and merely to sell out what rights the city had! We do not believe the city council ever intended any such thing. To impute to them such intention is to deem them unworthy the position they hold. We are sure that the Mayor would soon have resigned his office than have forwarded to the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States the above recited order of the city council, on the knowledge or belief that the intention was to shirk the responsibility of maintaining the title. In forwarding that order, the Mayor, instead of giving it any special construction, more or less, took it as it was worded, as fair and honest and just import. He could not properly have done otherwise. Nor will we believe that the council shall make any declaration of a different intention at the time of the passage of the order, however they may have changed their minds since, for if they were willing they may be to get rid of the implied obligation resting on them involved in the passage of that order.

It is a credit and an honor to the Mayor that he has no intention of attempting to escape from the responsibility of the action in this case, but is willing, in spite of the opposition of some and the sneers of a few others, to stand erect and to shoulder bravely and inflexibly the responsibility so unfairly assigned. To be sure it might have been better to have secured the title before offering to sell instead of assuming the risk! That question might well have been pondered before passing the order, but seems rather late to be intruded now, especially for the purpose of placing the Mayor in a false position, when it stands now where he and the council stood hope her when the order under which he acted was passed.

He believed then, from the many assurances given, that the city could make a better bargain with the riparian owners after an acceptance by the Government of the market foundation for a custom house site, than before such acceptance, and he believes now that the real interests of the city will be best consulted by the acceptance of the offer of the riparian owners than to defeat the location of the custom house upon the basis of that foundation.

He had good reason to know that a good title by good legal opinion, the city's title to the foundation for a market foundation, depends upon the maintenance by the city of streets around the same. His official action is perfectly consistent, and although we differ with him upon the fitness of the location, we deem it but a simple act of justice to him as the chief Magistrate of the city, so zealous for her honor and prosperity, to say these few words in defence of the consistency of his course in regard to the matter.

☞ The correspondent of the Mercury over the signature of "Many," appears to have a very sovereign contempt of facts. He declares that no proposition to bridge over the Sargent stream about the market foundation, &c., has been before the city council or is likely to be. So poor a historian will not acquire credit as a prophet. The proposition for bridging, &c., certainly has been before the city council, has been referred to a joint committee, and that committee has reported and their report has been accepted and published. Is it necessary to chase this writer any farther?

☞ The Calais Journal states that the post office in St. Stephen was consumed by fire on Saturday last. Also that a barn with its contents, hay, &c., belonging to Mr. Henry P. Whitney, in Alexander, was destroyed by fire a few nights since, supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

☞ The letter of A. J. Downing, Esq., giving the beautiful description of Woburn Abbey, should have been credited to the Horticulturist published at Albany, and of which the author of the letter is editor. The omission of the credit was by accident.

☞ The 15th part of The Illustrated Domestic Bible, now in the course of publication, has been received by us from Messrs. Hotchkiss & Co., enterprising dealers in books and periodicals in Boston.

☞ Hon. B. K. Goodenow will please accept our thanks for his attentions in forwarding to us public documents.

CONSUMPTION OF THE LUNGS, or DECLINE: the causes, symptoms, and rational treatment, with the Means of Prevention. By F. H. Yeoman, M. D. Boston: James Munroe & Co.

This is a neat little volume, and is sufficiently described in the title. It contains a great many common sense and some suggestions touching the subject of pulmonary disease, and as it is quite probable that all disease is admit, the suggestions are worth considering by all; not as formulas to be implicitly followed by any one, but as suggestions, helping one in ordinary life by their simplicity and practical character, to avoid many of the evils of disease. The work may be found at E. F. Duren & Co's.

TO LOVE AND TO BE LOVED. A Story. By A. S. Hoe. New York: D. Appleton & Co.

This is a very interesting story of New York city which most readers will pronounce good. It is in the usual good style of the enterprising publishing house mentioned in the imprint.

Washington Correspondence.

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier.

WASHINGTON, Feb 17.

Two weeks from to-day and the doings, character, and history of the thirty-first Congress will have gone down to the archives of the past. It has been an eventful Congress, and while it has witnessed, during its existence, much to dishearten, it has witnessed more to inspire hope and confidence, and resolution in the name of the patriot to encounter the vicissitudes of the dark and impenetrable future. It has witnessed the raging of a tempest that threatened at one time, to bring our history, as a nation, to a sudden and disastrous close, but it has also witnessed on the part of the people, and the servants of the people, the expression of a spirit which has stilled the fury of the storm, and given assurance of the strength of our institutions and their capacity to withstand the rest, determined assaults of their most implacable enemies.

All experience proves that the most stubborn and unyielding principle is that of fanaticism—and thus that fanaticism is the most dangerous which owes its origin to an excitement partaking of a moral and religious nature. Truth best left alone—suffered to burn itself out, and by the cold glare of whose fires truth will reason are the best able to detect the hideous and unnatural features of its monstrous and victorious. So with the fanaticism which at present unfortunately exists in some sections of the country upon the subject of slavery. I am free to confess that among the body of those who are ill-mustled ranks, there are many very many who are honest and sincere in their sentiments, who really believe the infamous fabrications of the leaders. But towards those leaders themselves, who must better know the fact, every good citizen, as a matter of moral principle, can entertain no other emotion than those of indignation and contempt. They are equally persons who have their cast of from previous party associations, or who have themselves sloughed off from motives of disappointment or neglect, or else those to whom abolition assortments is but the pendant one is of securing notoriety—a notoriety earned by even baser men than they, but to whose fame it is more preferable than to the obscurity to which they would otherwise be so hopelessly consigned. So far as the great majority of the fanatical body are concerned, they are honest, but ignorant, misled men, and to such the more charitable is given on the part of those who would and patiently by such means, chase for themselves a name—and in doing so shall fall from the lips of these they have so long deceived, the deluding imputation will be the fault to which the deceivers will be justly subjected. Thus they are acting more from motives than with a reasonably assurance of success, is certain.

The defeat of many of the slaves has produced as great excitement here as could be expected, but in no way has those who hold it decreased their obedience to the law—and who recognize their duty as good citizens, to uphold and maintain the requirements of a constitution under the operations of which we have, as a nation, already become the wonder and glory of civilized world.

During the latter part of the last week the House of Representatives held evening sessions. The near approach of the 4th of March, in connection with the fact that much unfinished business yet remains unacted upon, renders this necessary. I very much fear that the French Spoliation Bill, as well as the Ocean Postage Bill must go over to the next Congress for want of time! That few would regret, could they be brought to a vote there is no question. They will both become laws eventually, and we now very fortunately have a President who entertains too high a regard for the decision of Congress, as well as for the demands of justice, to interpose his veto merely to show that he has the power to defeat its will. The Spoliation Bill, you will recollect, was crushed for the time by the veto of Mr. Polk, and for reasons which Mr. Webster very justly characterized at the time as not rising to the dignity of an argument!

Quite a fluttering took place between the two wings of the Democracy last week in the House—one wing maintaining it to be the right and duty of the General Government to appropriate money for the improvement of rivers and harbors, while the other pinned as strongly declared, pointing for evidence to the prohibitory veto in the Baltimore platform, upon which the party stood in 1844. The main combatants were Mr. McClernand of Maryland, and Mr. Morse of Louisiana. During the contest the platform itself was rather rudely handled—Mr. McClernand, in fact, tearing up the anti internal improvement plank with very little ceremony, and manifesting on the whole a contempt for the entire structure which went to show that another gibbet must be erected in 1852 to facilitate the execution of the interest and honor of the country, should Democracy conclude to repeat the sacrifice.

A spirited scene occurred in the Senate a few days ago, between Messrs. Benton and King, the very able and strictly impartial presiding officer of that body. A question of parliamentary law was the theme of dispute, during the progress of which language was indulged in quite as strong and pointed as was consistent with senatorial usage and courtesy. It resulted in nothing, save the infliction of a mutual wounded or so, and the strengthening of the general impression that Mr. B's retirement from the Chamber will tend to conduce to the comfort and good feeling of its members.

Nothing else worthy of note, I believe, has transpired in either House of Congress since I wrote last.

Our streets are filled with real live Yankees, on a pleasure trip to the National metropolis. They remember about five hundred, and are a fine looking set of men, and appear to be on good terms with themselves, and all about them. I hope their trip may prove to be an agreeable one, and serve to dispel much of that foolish prejudice which has been manufactured to rear up the unholy and low feeling of South politics.

Washington has, during the whole winter, been unusually full of strangers. They come, and they are numerous and [illegible] have been filled to overflowing during the whole season, so full at times as to render it quite impossible to secure lodgings. A few days and the scene will be changed—our streets become deserted,—and present that listless appearance peculiar to them during a long recess.

Yours, &c.,

MAINE

THE QUINCY TRAGEDY—Probable Explanation.—The following article from the Baltimore Sun, seems to explain the mystery which enshrouds the late tragedy at Quincy. The explanation is a very plausible one and seems to tally with all the facts in the case which have been published:

We were yesterday called on by a gentleman who informed us that he fully recognizes the parties to this mystery as having been John Grieve and his wife Hannah—the first the son of Mr. Peter Grieve, of Zanesville, Ohio, and the latter the daughter of Mr John Banks of the same place. He states that they were noted for their romantic freaks, and that the wife has been known to attend lectures dressed in male attire, where no one but males were admitted, and that they made a practice of going out in a boat in the Muskingum river, she attired as a male, for the purpose of sailing, bathing, &c. The following published in the Sun of the 24th of October last, is the last that had been heard of the parties at Zanesville:

Death by Drowning.—The Zanesville Gazette records the death of Mr and Mrs John Grieve. They were in the habit of rowing and sailing up the Muskingum afternoons, taking the evening meal aboard. They also took books and read as they floated upon the waters, until twilight. Monday night they did not return. Tuesday night their boat was found bottom side up and the shawl and basket of Mr Grieve. Their bodies had not been found.

It was also stated, in more detailed accounts published at the time of their disappearance that she was dressed in male attire, and our informant further states that the description of the parties published in the Sun on Tuesday as drowned, is precisely that of the missing John Grieve and his wife—even to the wreath on his arm—in the centre of which it was said was the figure of a female, which he had often seen.

Mrs Grieve was young and very intelligent, a word both prose and poetry with considerable merit, but was of a marked romantic disposition, so much so that when generally supposed to be drowned, those who knew them best believed that it was but another romance of friends, and that they would again be heard from. Grieve was a boat maker, and had also acted as an engineer on the Miami canal, which corresponds with the statement made by the parties as to their early place of their disappearance from Quincy, where the man had been working at boat making. They were both of respectable and wealthy families, and were well provided for before their mysterious disappearance.

[O]ur informant also states that if the man should prove to be John Grieve, other marks will be found on the right arm he having commenced to paint his name in Indian ink, but after getting as far as 'John Grie,' ceased the operation. If this is found to be the case, it will settle the point as to his identity.

It may be remarked further that the day of the disappearance from Zanesville, which seems to be fixed by the extract from the Zanesville Gazette, as on Monday, the 14th of October, accords with their appearance in New York, on their way to the East, which according to the memorandum found in their room was about the 22d of October.

BUSINESS AFFAIRS

NEW YORK Feb 19

The Crescent City arrived at New York on Monday, with specie, merchandize and 210 passengers.

The Crescent City brings dates from San Francisco to the 1st inst.

The steamship Antelope arrived at Panama on the 4th of February with $500 000 in gold dust and freight and passengers. She left San Francisco on the 15th. The steamship Sarah Sands arrived at Panama on the 5th inst.

Died on board the steamer Crescent City at San Juan, February 3d, D W Wasson of New York 3d inst., aged 25 years.

The steamer Crescent City has experienced strong winds during the whole passage from Chagres. On Monday, the 17th, exchanged signals with schooner Grand Island of Newburyport lat 32 10, lon 63 10.

The steamship Isabella Capt Brown sailed for New Orleans on the 15th inst. The steamship Cherokee Capt Windle arrived at Chagres on the 7th inst and was to leave on the arrival of the specie via Panama.

The Crescent City does not bring the mails.

Business throughout the cities of California is extremely dull, goods having been sold at a commonly low rates. In some instances lower than the first cost in New York, but it is state of things cannot last long. The miners who have been getting out an immense quantity of dirt but small returns for a long time, will soon begin to reap the products of their labors and trade will consequently revive and be as thriving as ever. The want of rain in the mountains has been a serious drawback upon the labors of the miners, still a considerable amount of dust has been purchased by bankers, though not as much as would have been the case had the rains set in earlier.

The great excitement in the city of San Francisco for some days past, has been the report of the [illegible] Black Ball steamer Klamath from Panama. Various rumors were afloat as to the fate of the vessel, but the general impression was that she was lost. At last accounts nothing had been heard of her, and the excitement was intense. Many persons left on the steamer for Panama, in search of the missing vessel, and other steamers were about to follow.

Business was very dull, and the markets overstocked with goods.

Money is very plenty, and the rate of interest has fallen to 2 per cent per month.

Flour is selling in Nevada City 8 and 9 cents per pound.

Mining on Scott's River, between Salmon and Shasta is reported to be very successful. The Indians came from the mountains very frequently and drive off the miners at work on the Merced River.

GOLD DUST.—The amount of treasure which was to be sent on the 15th will probably reach about three quarters of a mill on of dollars.

Crime in California stalks abroad with an unchecked hand, rendering life and property insecure in the extreme.

The common council of Sacramento have passed an ordinance forbidding street gambling.

The steamer Lawrence, which was sunk sometime since, has been raised.

Gov Burnett's message occupies 8 columns of the San Francisco Herald.

DEATHS.

CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, Feb 18

In the House, reports from Committees were received, and that on military affairs was discharged from so much of the report of the board of army and navy affairs assembling by the order of the President, in relation to the Commissions and brevet rank, which they recommend Tabled.

A number of private bills were then passed.

The House went into Committee of the Whole and resumed the consideration of the River and Harbor bill. A substitute was adopted and passed, 104 to 87. Adj.

In the Senate, numerous petitions were presented.

Mr Cooper presented a petition from members of the Pennsylvania Legislature, in favor of a line of steamers to Africa, and also one petitions for the modification of the tariff of 1846.

Mr Jefferson Davis offered a resolution prohibiting the [illegible] of debates. The resolution was debated and laid on the table.

Mr Morton presented the [illegible] resolutions of the Florida Legislature in relation to [illegible] and also asking Congress to grant the lands all the public lands in that State.

Mr Webster presented [illegible] memorials of the Indiana Bar Congress of New Jersey, in favor of the freedom of the public lands. This subject having already been acted on by the Committee, was laid on the table.

Mr Jefferson Davis offered a resolution requiring the daily debate to be published without revision by members, debated at some length and then laid on the table.

Mr Clay's resolution of inquiry, asking the President for information concerning the Boston mob, and also whether it was necessary to pass a law to enforce the fugitive slave law, was taken up, and agreed to. The Senate then resumed the consideration of the cheap postage bill, and various amendments were debated.—Mr Seward's amendment of two cents to be prepaid, was rejected, and the Senate adjourned.

WASHINGTON, Feb 18th 1851

The following proclamation by President Fillmore has been officially announced:

Whereas information has been received that sundry lawless persons, principles by persons of color combined and confederated together for the purpose of passing by force the recent [illegible] of the laws of the United States, at Boston, Mass., in the month of [illegible] and make a violent assault on the Marshal or Deputy Marshals of the United States for the District of Massachusetts in the discharge of their duties and did overpower the said officers and did by force take from their custody a person or persons arrested as fugitives from labor and then and there [illegible] held by the [illegible] Marshal or Deputy Marshals of the United States, and other outrageous outrages did commit in violation of law;

Now, therefore, to the end that the authority of the laws may be maintained, and those concerned in violating them brought to condign punishment, I have thought fit to issue this my proclamation, hereby commanding all persons engaged in such unlawful combinations, and assaults upon the Marshal and his deputies, to disperse and retire peaceably to their homes and abodes within one hour after the issuing hereof; and I do further command all good citizens of the United States, and all officers of the civil and military forces of the United States, and of the several States, carefully to observe and obey the laws of the land, and to support and uphold the officers charged with the execution thereof in the effectual suppression of such combinations, and assaults upon the Marshal and his deputies, and for the arrest and punishment of all persons engaged therein.

And I do further declare and make known that any person who shall molest, obstruct or hinder any officer or person charged with the execution of any warrant or process issued by virtue of the laws of the United States, for the purpose of arresting or retaking any fugitive from labor, or who shall rescue or attempt to rescue such fugitive from the custody of the officer or person lawfully holding him, will be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor, and will, on conviction thereof, be punished as the law directs.

Given under my hand, and the seal of the United States, this 18th day of February 1851.

Bliss' Compound Cod Liver Oil Candy.

Since the introduction of Cod Liver Oil as a general remedy for disorders of the lungs and throat, it has been found that many persons are unable to take the oil in its crude state, on account of its disagreeable taste and nauseating effects upon the stomach. To obviate this difficulty, the celebrated Dr. Bliss has prepared a combination of the Oil with Sugar, forming a delicious candy, which is found to be as efficacious as the oil in its crude state, and at the same time entirely free from its disagreeable taste and nauseating effects upon the stomach. For sale by druggists generally throughout the country.

The powerful curative principles of the Cod Liver Oil, by this combination, are rendered pure and effective, and the Oil is thus prepared in a form by which it can be taken with ease and pleasure by the most delicate female or child. Many who have suffered for years from Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Female Weakness, and other diseases, have been restored to perfect health by the use of this remedy.

Be sure to call for Bliss' Compound Cod Liver Oil Candy, and observe the name on the envelope of each piece. Prepared only by B. K. Bliss, Druggist, 30 Tremont Row, Boston. Price 25 cents a package.

For sale in Bangor by HADD & INGRAHAM.
